Policy Actions and Emergency Responses to the Covid-19 Pandemic - Case of Ulaanbaatar

(Summary)

Mongolia was the only country that has prevented local transmission case of COVID-19 until the middle of November 2020. There were confirmed only imported cases, which was a result of the repatriation of the Mongolian citizens from abroad. Due to the first local confirmed case of COVID-19, Ulaanbaatar city and some provinces have moved to the state of Public Readiness Level on 13 November of this year and the public lockdown was partially extended until December 11, 2020.

The strategies such as tracking close and indirect contacts of confirmed cases, rapid and PCR testing are in place to prevent and reduce the spread of public transmission of infection.

Measures similar to social distancing, isolation, quarantine, lockdown and curfew are effective procedures during the airborne transmission of coronavirus infection.

The operation of Moscow Transport during and after the pandemic (Summary)

Despite the lockdown, the operation schedule of all types of transport was fully preserved, this decision allowed the city to continue its life. The city was able to quickly organize a system of automated control over admission control. A platform to get a pass was created, where you could also check the pass online. We had regular disinfection in infrastructure and transport even before the pandemic. Now we carry out cleaning about 2, or even 15 times more often, and we will leave the new regulations even when the pandemic is over. Mandatory use of masks and gloves, regular informing on safety rules, sanitizers at stations, contactless payment - all this will remain in Moscow for a long time. We have placed tens of thousands of thematic posters and stickers on travel rules and safety measures on the metro and ground transportation infrastructure. For workers in the office and at transport facilities there are regular testings, temperature measurements and disinfection. Employees must use PPE.

During peak hours, about 100-120 thousand trips were made to the Moscow metro against 1 million at the beginning of March. The number of cars on the roads of Moscow during the period of self-isolation (April-May) compared with March, decreased from 20 to 50%. During the period of self-isolation, traffic jams did not exceed 1-2 points, even during peak hours. Today, the intervals of movement of metro trains are monitored in real time, they are displayed on a special display, and in the applications “Moscow Transport” and “Moscow Metro” you can select a less loaded carriage or ground transport. We have not reduced the operation for any type of transport due to the coronavirus - including to save jobs for workers in factories.
